Care of Circus Animals.
Great care must be taken during the winter months to preserve the health of circus animals, as nearly all of them are susceptible to some form of disease. Monkeys take cold easily, and unless quinine is given them at once quick consumption is almost certain to result. When a monkey has to take quinine it makes a great fuss. This is why a mother tells her young hopeful when he makes a grimace over his medicine: "Come, now, down with it, and no more monkey faces!" Elephants have rheumatism; camels have skin disease, and all members of the cat family must be given lime juice to overcome the bad effects of stomach trouble.

Forbidden Fruit.
A request was once made to the authorities of one of the colleges at Cambridge that room might be found on the spacious lawns of their garden for the lady students of Girton College to play lawn tennis. Guessing clearly enough what would be the result of the admission of these students of the fairer sex among the undergraduates, the master replied that it was ordered in the statutes of the college that the gardens must be devoted to the purposes of floriculture, and must not be used for husbandry.—Spare Moments.

Fish Put to Many Uses.
In Gloucester, the "king town" of fish, the humble cod has been utilized with success for making leather for shoes and gloves. In Egypt men walk on sandals made from the skins of Red Sea fish. In Russia certain peasant costumes are beautifully trimmed with the skins of a fine food fish, the turbot. Bookbinders in Europe are binding books with eel skin.

Puncturing a Metaphor.
Tommy was perverse. Invariably he began at the end of the lesson when called upon to recite. One day his teacher spoke to him sharply. "Thomas," she said, "did you ever see the cart before the horse?" "Yes'm," replied the unabashed Thomas, "when they feed the horse."

Milking by Electricity.
The Umschau claims for the process of milking cows by electricity (rubber caps being attached to the udders) the advantage of superior cleanliness, and adds that the cows more readily yield the milk than when the hands are used.

Mineral in Eastern Asia.
Eastern Asia is one of the richest mineral fuel regions in the world. The area of all the paying coal layers in Europe comprises only 22,760 square miles, an area equal to that in one of the Russian provinces—the Kazan province.

Large Hands at a Premium.
At the famous Russian fair at Nijni Novgorod a curious method of selling turquoise gems is sometimes practiced. On payment of a fixed sum a person is allowed to plunge his hand into a bag filled with the stones, and becomes the possessor of as many as he can clutch.

Sunday School Enrollment.
There are within three million of as many persons enrolled in the Sunday schools of this country as in the public schools, there being thirteen million in the former and sixteen million in the latter. The total Sunday school membership throughout the world is twenty-five billion.

Know What Pronoun Was.
A teacher, explaining to her class that a pronoun is a word used instead of a noun, asked for an example. A small boy instantly asked to be heard, when he explained: "It is a pronoun. It is used instead of sick."

Japanese Servants.
The Japanese women have no servant problem to solve, simply because they do not look down on servants as such. Visitors bow as low to servants as to their mistresses, and if the mistress is away the servants serve tea and entertain the visitors.

Split Wood by Machine.
A machine has been invented which is capable of splitting wood two feet long and eighteen inches thick. It is run by a three horsepower gasoline engine, and consists of a huge knife which works through the knottiest wood at the rate of sixty strokes a minute.

Match Making in France.
Eight hundred tons of sulphur were used in France last year in making matches. The daily consumption was three per head of the population. Match making is a monopoly of the French government to which it yields an annual revenue of $5,000,000.

Colombia's Capital.
Although Bogota is 800 miles from the Atlantic and only 250 from the Pacific, it is less accessible from the Pacific because of the Andes. The town is situated 8,760 feet above the sea level, and the weather is springlike all the year around.

There is a Difference.
"Many a man," said Uncle Eben, "has discovered to his sorrow that a gal don't look nor act de same when she's cookin' flap-jacks for breakfast as she does when she's dishin' ice cream at a strawberry festival."—Washington Star.

Politeness Never Wrong.
Politeness is never wrong. Its practice goes nearly all the way towards the goal of the right thing in the right place. We hear of polite insolence, but insolence is never polite; and it is never, under any circumstances, polite to be insolent.

Didn't Think Time Had Come.

Remember the old saying about creaky doors and long hinges. I had an aunt who was over seventy, and because she had some liver trouble she was continually praying out loud that she might never live long enough to be a nuisance to anybody. But I noticed one day when she got a sudden ache she upset her prayer stool in a rush to the medicine closet.—"Joshua Larrabee in Boston Herald.

Jugs Were His Life Preservers.

Think of the life of a Georgia fisherman being saved by two jugs! The item reads: "When he rolled into the river he had two gallon jugs with him—one in each hand. He did not let go his grip on 'em; the jugs acted as life preservers and he floated safely to land, where he immediately uncorked the jugs and celebrated his providential deliverance. — Atlanta Constitution.

Bismarck Not Impressed.

Prince Bismarck once received an application from a personal friend, who desired a place in the imperial foreign office for his son. "What can the boy do?" asked the prince. "He can speak seven languages," replied the proud father. "Lieber himmel!" exclaimed the man of blood and iron. "What a splendid head waiter he would make!"

Folly of Misanthropy.

Let lachrymose philosophers There's not a wind the flower that stirs.

A tint that stains the sky, Or aught in earth, or air, or sea, But for our good was given; This world was formed by God to be The vestibule of heaven! —Unidentified.

Pulling Strength.

The pulling strength of men and animals was recently shown in an exhibition of a circus at Madison Square Garden, New York. For each pound of its own weight an elephant can pull .72 of a pound; a camel, .76, and a horse 1.17 of a pound. A man can pull .82 of his own weight.

Pay Millions for Eggs.

The English buy $30,000,000 worth of eggs abroad each year, the average price being 16 cents a dozen.

Korean Style in Hats.

There is a language of hats in Korea, and the twenty or more styles have each a voice and meaning. If a man is in mourning sixteen square feet of matting is shaped in a pyramid two feet high for his head covering.

Ancient Books.

The Babylonian and Assyrian books consisted of clay tablets, prisms and cylinders baked by the sun or in an oven into an almost imperishable hardness, so that they have come down to us exactly as they left the hands of the ancients.

Sells Moths and Butterflies.

Yorkshire, England, has a farm on which moths and butterflies are reared for sale. It is planted with trees and shrubs for the purpose. Forty thousand caterpillars are always on hand and orders can be filled at any time of the year.

Rancher's Ingenious Scheme.

An ingenious rancher of Oceanside, in San Diego county, is said to have a vivid and brilliant idea for economizing labor and fuel, in hatching eggs. He has discovered that bees develop a considerable amount of warmth, so he simply places the eggs over a beehive, and in due time they are hatched. If he could manage to cross his bees with Bismarck horns, he might be able to hatch a few more.

Snail's Sense of Smell.

According to the researches of M. Emile Yung, the sense of smell in the snail seems to be located not only in the feeling organs, but all over the body, as experiment proves that the snail can perceive odors by means of sensory cells which are placed in different parts of the body, quite apart from the special organs which might be supposed to be his only means of sensation.

True Economy.

In order to practice true economy it is necessary to distinguish between necessities and luxuries. Economy consists in getting the thing needed at the right time. One luckless man tells of having spoiled a $4 set of knives while economizing in the matter of purchasing a can-opener. After the destruction of the last knife he bought the much-needed article. He is not alone in such experiences. We can all read guilty.

Circulation of Two.

The "Daily Record of International Opinion," published by command of the German emperor, is not much of an advertising medium, its circulation being exactly two copies. One goes to the Kaiser, the other to the national library. It consists entirely of extracts from German and foreign newspapers, and forms a pretty big volume.

Miniature Fish.

One of the favorite dishes of the natives of the Philippines is a fish called by them sinarapan. The largest specimens are half an inch long, the smallest one-fifth of an inch, and it takes 6,000 to make a pound.

Does Education Pay?

Greece is overrun by well-educated men, who do not know how to earn a living. The country swarms with doctors who have no patients and lawyers who have no briefs, while laborers to till the soil are at a premium.

Salt in the Ocean.

If the ocean were dried up, all the water passing away as vapour, the amount of salt remaining would be enough to cover 5,000,000 square miles with a layer one mile thick.

Immense Propeller Flanges.

The flanges on the propellers of large ships are seven and a half feet long. Their tips revolve at the rate of a mile and a half a minute.
